

Giovanni Rossi is an old italian man visiting his oldest son who lives in California.

His son decides he is going to take his father to a nice restaurant to celebrate him visiting.

While they are ordering, the waitress cannot understand Giovanni because of his Italian accent and asks him to repeat himself multiple times until she finally guesses what he is ordering.

Giovanni tells his son that this happens all of the time and he is tired of it.

The son shows him this new app that can translate broken english and accents so people will understand them better.

Giovanni's son downloads the app for him on the spot and Giovanni is able to order dessert with ease.

